

33 cfr part 167 uscg is not doing enough to prevent ship strikes of whales. all vessels have sonar to find fish - why are they so negligent that they keep hitting them. it is time to put a penalty of $10,000,000 for hitting and killing a whale.

if navigational hazards are faced, let the vessels stay out of the area. they do have aids to depth, etc and these vessels seem too lazy or stupid to use this assistance to help avoid ship strikes.
